Lambda is the weekly student newspaper of, by and for the students of Laurentian University. Lambda is funded through a direct student levy by the members of the Students General Association, yet remains autonomous from all University organizations, both student and administrative.

Letters submitted must bear the author's full name and telephone number. Printing of names will be withheld by request. Lambda is a member of Canadian University Press (CUP) and as a member respects and upholds the CUP Statements of Principles and Code of Ethics.

Staff membership is open to all members of the Laurentian University community and is contingent upon a recognized contribution to three editions, nine hours volunteer works per term or fifteen hours per academic year. Articles written to meet external job requirements shall not be considered for the staff membership status.

Lambda Publications shall be governed by a Board of Directors known as the Lambda Publications Board of Directors. The purpose of the Board shall be to monitor the operations of Lambda Publications, to ensure that the Business Manager and the Editor-in-Chief are operating in a fiscally responsible manner and are adhering to the Constitution of Lambda. The Board is not responsible for the financial operations nor the editorial content of Lambda. It shall be a reporting mechanism to any concerned bodies.

Hang a White Ribbon...

by Janice Savage
Editor-in-Chief

There has been another rash of crimes on campus. This, hopefully, is not news to anyone, especially those of you who live, or spend a disproportionate number of hours in the darkness on campus. It is unfortunate that women are the subjects of assault almost exclusively; that is just a sad consequence of evolution.

The last reported assault took place before 8:00 pm. on a relatively short pathway that is neither isolated nor completely dark. What makes this assault stand out in my mind, and in the minds of other women on campus, is that a deadly weapon was involved. The man had a knife. The woman got away, probably scared and not likely to walk home alone again for a while, but she escaped. So did her assailant. This is not funny any more (not that is ever was). Somehow it brings the whole "men's violence against women" cause closer to home. Speaking for myself, a female who is not and has never been afraid to walk home alone, I don't blame a lot of people for being non-believers in the whole "White-Ribbon Campaign". But I will be wearing a white ribbon next week, for two reasons.

First, this years white ribbon week (Nov. 28 - Dec. 4) is being organized by the school of Engineering. The white ribbon, for those of you who have filed them behind red and black ribbons, stands to support the end of men's violence against women. Hats off to this predominantly male school for taking the campaign out of the hands of women who have organized the activities in the past. The nature and validity of this campaign has returned when men as a whole work to raise awareness of the crimes of a few.

Second, in the last month we have seen the issue come home. Two assaults have been reported, and a third alleged incident has changed the way in which the UC/SSR complex deals with all visitors. That's three incidents in the last month in a community of 1200 semi-permanent residents. Those are tough odds to beat when we deny that they happen.

Assault With A Weapon

ATTENTION!

On Tuesday, November 16, 1993 at about 7:50 p.m., a female student was walking alone south from the R.D. Parker Building to the footpath leading to the rear of the University of Sudbury residence. She was grabbed by the throat by a male suspect carrying a knife. The victim kicked the assailant and fled. The assailants face may also have been burned by a cigarette.

Description of assailant: Male, 6'1" to 6'2", slim, short dark hair, mid to late 20's, possibly wearing a short jacket,

SPACE FOR RANT! Congratulations

Dear Lambda,

CONGRATULATIONS!!!! It's about time that someone realized that Laurentian University has more varsity teams than just mens and ladies basketball. I've been a Lambda reader for four years, I must say that this is the first year that I have seen EQUAL coverage for all the varsity sports in your newspaper. Keep up the great work!

the division of people into groups based on race. However, it seems that sexual orientation is another matter. Using misleading and highly questionable statistics, he claims that homosexuality is an "unhealthy lifestyle".

Studies have also shown that left-handed people have a slightly shorter life span than right-handed people. Should they also be condemned for their "unhealthy lifestyle"? And what about drinkers and smokers? Will Gekko make them the targets of his next column?

It's right-wing bigots like Gekko that "get into power by dividing us apart". They preach hate using phrases like "traditional family values" as a smoke screen. Read my lips: HATE IS NOT A FAMILY VALUE.

I wonder what article Mr. Brons read. Rather than argue the statistics which are provided from the Center for Disease Control, Pediatrics magazine and a report from a doctor, he simply dismisses them, hoping that somehow that will invalidate the truth. The old weakness of the left, you can't argue with facts so you degenerate into insults. Very good Mr. Brons. I don't even have to say anything to prove myself right, you did it for me. If Mr. Brons had read my article, he might have noticed that my belief is to fight the hatred of gays. If I'm a bigot for stating the reality of the situation, then I will gladly accept the moniker. I refuse to hide facts from people, I have no agenda, and nothing to lose by telling the truth. It is an affront to truth to accept misinformation because of complacency.

A Newspaper For Students By Students

I am writing this letter knowing that people will think that, I am trying to create a division between French and English students. This is not so. I am merely writing this letter to ask a question of both Lambda and L'Original Déchaîne.

I am an avid reader of Lambda. I know when I pick up an issue of Lambda that there is a section devoted to French speaking students. This is not the problem. I recently picked up a copy of the French students paper L'original expecting to find a similar section that was devoted to English students. I did not find this much anticipated section, in fact there was not one word in English. This coming from a paper who on the cover wrote (loosely translated) A NEWSPAPER FOR STUDENTS BY STUDENTS. It should have read a newspaper for French students by French students.

My question is why don't Lambda and L'Original Déchaîne join to have a paper that regardless of language any student can read and enjoy. I know that this will probably go over like a lead balloon but it was worth a try.

Please respond, Thank You
I will leave this unsigned as it will create less problems that way.

It is not the first time that the idea of creating one newspaper to service the entire University has been brought up. To fully explain why there are two papers we would have to go into great length into the history of English-French relations at Laurentian. Here is what I, as a student, avid reader, and Editor have to say about the situation.

First of all, Lambda is funded by the SGA, through a student levy. L'Original is also funded through a student levy, but through the AEF. As you can well imagine, being borne from two distinctly different ideologies means the newspapers reflected two different ideologies. There was a time, not so long ago, when relations between the two associations was not so ducky as it is now.

The other complication is that when L'Original began publishing in 1986, Lambda was celebrating its 25th anniversary. Hence, L'Original was built on the premise that there was a need for a second newspaper and that Lambda was not fulfilling the needs of the students.

The other thing that should be mentioned is that Lambda chose to be bilingual. It was a choice made by the staff to represent both the French and English language within our pages. It was not something that was forced upon us, it was a decision based on the desire of the staff to expand the horizons of a student press that can sometimes be a victim of tunnel vision.

The fact that L'Original is entirely French is the decision of their staff. It would not be until both papers agree that there is room for two ideologies in one publication that Lambda and L'Original would be able to co-exist so intimately.

I would also like to express my personal regret that you did not leave a name or phone number on your letter. I would ask you to please identify yourself by coming into the office. The student press needs more people who understand the similarities between students and question why anybody is accentuating the differences. If you want to get involved, we can find something for you to do!

Rape: A Personal Attempt at Understanding

by Derek Ripley
Contributor

On November 16th, a young lady was assaulted here on our Laurentian Campus. On October 16th an assault took place in our Laurentian Pool. What drives people to do such evil and unnecessary acts? Sometimes, I wonder about rapists and try to rationalize what drives them to do such things.

Are rapists lonely? Perhaps, but one does not make friends by assaulting people. The only thing they achieve is a brief period of bodily contact and sexual satisfaction. These two desires can be satisfied by non-violent methods.

Are they acting in revenge to ward society for a personal misfortune? If this is so, it is ineffective. Not only does it create a new victim, but it places the rapist at risk of legal misfortune.

Are they reacting the scenes from their favourite "blood and guts" movie? This reason holds no psychological grounds. Most individuals differentiate between the fantasy and real life. Rarely is it possible to duplicate these scenes without the use of special effects.

Is rape the loss of morals in the rapist? Perhaps so, but even the highest religious figures in our society from Catholic Monks to T.V. evangelists such as Jimmy Swaggart also commit sexual crimes. Fundamental religious people pride themselves as having high levels of morality. They blame such mistakes on temptation from the devil. From a religious perspective this does provide an excuse (though be it unacceptable). Sex crimes by religious leaders does not in any way condone sexual crimes, but it does indicate that morality is not a factor.

Is instinct controlling the rapist's behaviour? Humans may be more bestial than we think. It would be comforting to believe that humans have complete control over their own behaviour. According to science, we evolved from the same swamp critters as did most of the animals with which we share our planet. Animals such as wolves will mate and kill for survival. Perhaps we cannot control our own behaviour as society has programmed us to believe. Yet, we have lost our violent sexual instincts through evolution?

It is unfortunate that rape does occur. It creates fear and social turmoil. It causes unjust psychological damage to the victim. Yet it's not necessary. If you feel the necessity to commit rape, I beg you to first consider your true reasons for doing it. I also beg you to consider the effect you will have on your victim.

Seems like all the bullshit's really coming together in time for White Ribbon Week. I mean, just look around you; the add campaigns, the statistics, the soaps... Then there was the knife assault on campus last week. When the statistics turn into reality, you have to start examining the rest of the bullshit to see what it really means.

White Ribbon Week. No memorials this year please, we'd like to get on with our lives, or so I was given to believe were the requests of the victims' families. This week was dedicated in honour of the fourteen women who were killed in Montreal in 1989, but is it really necessary to relive their pain every year? Will a memorial service affect change in the violent members of our society? I don't think so. Like I was told, we should be getting on with our lives.

Violence against women is pretty specific though. Do we want to address that kind of violence only? If violence is a symptom of a larger problem in society, what does that say about the treatment of part of a symptom? What about the violence committed against children, or against seniors? What about the violence that occurs between men? What about the violence that doesn't leave physical evidence? Whatever its manifestation, it's ugly. The most terrible thing that a human has to face, but it's like a disease, you only see the physical results of an internal breakdown.

If violence is the effect, what is the cause? It may not be what you expect; it may be due to low self-esteem. There was a study in California some years ago, and they found that between eighty and ninety percent of all violent criminal activity could be traced back to a low self image. I guess the cure is to love yourself.

I don't want to make it sound so simple, however; violence is a result of people hating themselves so much that they can't bear their own rage, and so they turn it outwards. Anyone can be a target. If you keep telling yourself that no one listens to you because you're not worth shit, then you use that lie as the excuse for your behaviour. You can make them listen to you. Perhaps it's the silence that drops stone-like after you've knocked someone on their ass. Maybe it's the pain and fear that light in the eyes of someone you know when you finish telling them what you really think of them — what you really think about yourself. It's the power such moments bring that you use to fill that empty hole in your gut. You're really something now, aren't you... but what? You are a criminal. There is a saying that you're only a criminal if you get caught, if somebody sees you, but violence is a participatory crime; your victim "catches" you, and if you're lucky, maybe you can even catch yourself. Maybe you can stop yourself too. You know you can, because somewhere inside there is a hurt little person who wants to come out and play again.... Give yourself the chance.

I do not want to glorify the criminal here, that's not my intent. Self-esteem is everybody's problem. Just because you don't hit anyone, doesn't mean you're excepted from the rule. Victims with self-esteem speak out about their experiences. They go to the police, even if it doesn't seem to produce any immediate results. They fight to love themselves more than anyone can falsely blame them, and they fight to understand their attacker, even while they fight to put that person behind bars. Victims love themselves enough to survive, and to help others in the same situation. They rise above the label of "victim" in a triumph of self-affirmation; they don't let the experience of being abused get in the way of their lives.

No memorials, please. White Ribbon Week shouldn't be a week devoted to grieving, it should be a celebration of survival and of triumph. It should be a time to reach out to someone in need, and let them know that there is a way out. If you're not the victim of abuse, it's likely that someone you know is. Love yourself enough to know that you can make a difference in their life. If your friend is a victim, it is your business.

White Ribbon Week runs from November 27th to December 3rd. Instead of mourning next week watch or read "The Prince of Tides" if you can, it's a beautiful story about surviving violence and learning to love.

From Tolerance to Understanding

William Morin

I am responding to the article "Cults on Campus" in the Nov-Dec issue of Campus Canada. With this year being the year of indigenous people, I wish to share something with you. I am working on a degree in Native Studies and learning so much. Most of it was kept out of the history textbooks for over a century. Some of which was the true facts about the Christianizing of natives, assimilation policies and the residential schools. The effects are still being felt by natives today. "Those people cut you off from your friends and your family, they screw up your academic life, they take your money, your goals and your personality and they make you totally dependent". These are the words of a non-native, Danielle Holmes and whether she knows it or not her words come pretty close to what natives would say. Quoted in the article "Cults on Campus", Holmes is speaking of cults and she is very active in making people aware of them. I'll put it in simpler terms, what happened to natives is now happening to non-natives or was it always.

Apart from the cultural differences, there is much in common between natives and non-natives. For example, life's experiences and shared values such as respect. In native cultures, respect is highly valued and expressed in many ways. It is through behaviour that one can best see this respect and one of which is non-interference. If you respect a people, you will not interfere in their decisions or beliefs. Today, is being politically correct a demonstration of respect or is it just words? Wanting respect doesn't mean you'll get it.

John 14:6 I am the Way; I am the Truth and Life. No one can come to the Father except through me. If you know me, you will know my Father too. Acts 4:12 Only in him is there salvation; for of all the names in the world given men, this is the only one by which we can be saved.

I ask who is it that needs to be politically correct and who are they

I was looking over last year's editions of Lambda and was mulling over a lengthy article that concerned free speech and how it was being subverted by the politically correct movement. Coincidentally enough, the Matin Yaqzin affair broke out at the same time. Mr. Yaqzin is the University of New Brunswick assistant professor who stated that women should expect sex when they accompany a man to his bedroom.

Mr. Yaqzin was suspended last week for those comments which appeared in the Brunswickian, the student paper. Were Yaqzin's comments acceptable? I didn't agree with almost anything of what he said. No person deserves to be raped, nor is it ever that person's fault. But I don't think that is the real issue. Yaqzin is just one man with outdated ideas. The point now is free speech.

Being a professor, Yaqzin should have been protected when making those remarks. As distasteful as they may be, we do live in an allegedly free society where a human may say, within reasonable limits, what they want. Clearly, I don't like most of what the left says, but I would defend their liberty with my life.

The reason that Yaqzin was fired was because he was fooled into thinking that, "You can say whatever you want", without noticing the proviso, "As long as you agree with me", the 'me' being the politically correct movement. In the 'Nice 90's', any thoughts which are not complimentary to a group that considers itself victims are to be suppressed.

There is also the case of Robert Driscoll, the U of T professor, whose book The New World Order in North America claims that a conspiracy of to impose that way of thinking on others. In the Ojibwa language, there is no distinction between gender. When talking of someone, it includes He/She in the address. There is so much we can learn from one another without losing who we are culturally.

Jews are attempting to run the world, by implanting microchips in babies brains, among other things. Of course the book is rubbish, but the author is a professor. He hasn't been suspended yet, but one administrator has stated that they are currently investigating him to find out how they can kick him out. Thought police indeed. Again, a group wants him out because of his, admittedly idiotic, ideas. In Yaqzin's case, UNB sought legal counsel to see if "an offensive environment" was created by his thoughts. If an offensive thought is enough to get in trouble, then god help us.

The right wing hasn't been traditionally seen as the champions of free speech, because much of what is to be protected is what the right finds offensive. I don't consider those people enlightened enough. A true mainstream will defend that right with their life. The left now seems to be the enemy of free speech. I've read countless articles (even in left biased papers) that decry this new enemy. And these two fools are the two latest victims. The politically correct movement eviscerates speech in an attempt to sanitize language so people won't be offended, not realizing by attempting to 'feel good' speech they remove the opportunity for new, original and innovative thought, that which may offend, but that carries the cause of humanity forward.

acceptable to him."

On a more basic level, a woman can share with me her experience of child birth but as a man I may only understand her words and witness her feelings. Nothing is lost but so much is gained in that sharing. In a society that is becoming culturally complex and diverse, I hope it is moving past tolerance and towards understanding and acceptance.

Racism

Racism hurts! Racism is a set of implicit or explicit beliefs and assumptions that one race or ethnic group is superior to another. This definition falls under the category of harassment, which is defined by the Ontario Human Rights Code as "engaging in a course of vexatious comment or conduct that is known or ought to be reasonably known as unwelcome." In other words, racism is illegal, it is against the law.

Racism can be expressed in many ways. The most "minor" of these is by making racial jokes, or offhand racial comments. This can escalate into something "major", like physical violence on the basis of someone's skin color, or cultural background. Hitler, the world's most famous racist, managed to exterminate millions of people for only one reason: they were Jews. Racism at it's most extreme.

It Hurts

Whether major or minor, any racial "attack", be it verbal or physical hurts the person it is directed at. It is as wrong as beating someone, killing them, raping them, etc. These are all things (sane) people do not do, racism should be another. By routinely putting someone down on the basis of their skin color, for example, will lead them to believe that they are indeed inferior, which is not true. Over time, these people will lose all self-respect, and will be degraded to the point of nothingness. This is not exaggeration, this is fact. Having to deal with the fact that one's race is an inferior one is not conducive to leading a healthy, happy life.

People have to realize that racism is a crime. Yes, a crime. It is a violation of Ontario's Human Rights Code in the grossest sense and will not be tolerated. After conversing with SGA's Heather Bishop, several things were clear. Although Miss Bishop expressed the proper opinion that the SGA is against racism, which is fabulous, she admitted that there is nothing the SGA is doing to address the issue in the near future. With so many members within it who are from different cultures (witness the various clubs: the Chinese Student's Association, the Hong Kong Student's Association, the International Student's Association, etc. why is the SGA not getting something going soon? By her own admission, Bishop admitted that there is a distrust of the SGA by the different groups who feel they are not getting adequate representation. The point: If we don't start working together, we'll get nothing done. Although the SGA does have a multicultural day planned in February, they're still not sure about it.

People must learn that racism is wrong, it will never be tolerated, and must be eradicated in order to have a just, free, democratic society. How can we call ourselves democratic if there are people from hundreds of different cultural groups who are afraid to stand up and voice their opinions because some racist punks are going to beat them for it.

Now, back to Laurentian. If anyone out there does have a problem with racism, they should know that they are not alone, there is help. This help comes in the form of a harassment officer: Norma MacRae Ward, whose office is in the 9th floor of the R.D. Parker Building (the really tall building). 80% of harassment victims don't report their incidents to anyone, according to national statistics. They are fearful that the "attacker" will catch them, and maybe hurt them; they don't believe that anything can be done about the problem or they think they can handle it themselves. What they don't realize is the Harassment Officer is a friend. Norma's job is to help you, and as such, the victim is the boss: they control what is done and at whatever pace they choose. What is actually done? The Harassment Officer can do a number of things, from counseling to helping the victim file a police report. (Please keep in mind that the Harassment Officer can help in any harassment situation: sexual, physical, racial, anything). She can also recommend professional help, if it is needed.

Although it is fine and dandy to decry racism, the important thing is education. We must learn that there are other cultures on this planet besides ours and that each one has as much right to be here as we do. Without proper education, we can have nothing, instead of trying to fight the problem, we must prevent it from occurring.

The week of December 6th-10th has been declared Race Relations Week by Mayor Jim Gordon. In Sudbury, there will be a week-long community program entitled "Building an Inclusive Society: Valuing Diversity". This program was proposed by L.U.'s own Monica Collins, from the Continuing Education Centre. The goal of the program, as stated in their literature is "To begin the process of building an inclusive caring society which truly values the diversity of it's peoples". It's ambitious objectives include:

- breaking the silence on racism
- opening up dialogue between all the different cultural and ethnic groups in Sudbury

- identifying racist issues and barriers to their free expression and solution

- increasing knowledge and understanding of ourselves and others

- foster racial unity and support the efforts of the Sudbury Race Relations Committee.

The program includes several guest speakers over the course of the week, including a welcome by Laurentian's own Dr. Ross Paul. The venues range from the Sampo Hall, to the Student Centre and the Sudbury Public Library Auditorium.

Right now, our society has a vast amount of problems. The economy is in the dumps and doesn't look like it's getting any better; no one can trust their governments; there are wars all over the world; the ozone layer is depleting; the rain forests are going; everything bad is happening. Let's face it, this world is hard enough to live in without worrying whether or not you'll get that job because you're black or brown. In order for us to restore our planet we have to all work together, regardless of skin color and ethnic and cultural background. Racism doesn't help, and it has no place in this world. The readership of this newspaper are the next leaders of this planet, if we abolish racism, and learn to work together, we can undo the mistakes and distastes made by our fathers, and their fathers, and hopefully live happily ever after.

Gay

Being gay in today's society is getting easier, but society still does not fully accept us. Some people feel homosexuality is only a small group of persons with a perverse sexual preference, they are wrong. Some people feel that it is immoral and unnatural, they are wrong. Some people also think that AIDS is a "gay" disease designed to eliminate all gays and lesbians. They are wrong.

The people who spread this kind of falsehood are insecure in their own sexuality and can not accept that other people have a different kind of lifestyle. This is to bad because to can prevent some people from coming out of their closets, and solving many of their own personal struggles. It also shows society that these people hate gays and lesbians because they are different. It really is to bad that at Laurentian there are people who are still very unaccepting and uneducated.

Despite, these problems that gays face regularly if you feel that you are gay the best thing for you to do is to express yourself. You are not alone, and you feel better if you do.

This column is brought to you by the Association fo Gays and Lesbians of Laurentian (A.G.L.L.). If you have any comments or opinions to express about this or other subjects, please feel free to submit them to Lambda SCE-301 Student Centre.

Chrysler Runs over Co-op Plans

Douglas Vallance
Staff Writer

On Wednesday the 17th of last week, in a boardroom on the 11th floor of the R. D. Parker Building, a meeting was held concerning the need for extra housing here on campus. Present were former and present members of the LOCS/EHCL who are part of an organization looking to build affordable housing for students who do not make it into normal residences during the school year. Heading up this group were Richard Maxwell and Simon Chapelle, with two main objectives; to create affordable housing for students and to create a co-operative which would build and administrate these residences. The Student Co-op Housing program which these students represent, has carefully laid down the frame work and feasibility studies necessary to begin plans for the building of the new complex, they also have a contractor waiting to give them the go ahead. Now all they need is, what else, money. And as is the case with any public administration, the University doesn't want to loan money to students. Even when it is for the students to use to improve the University.

Just a little background to help those of you who haven't the slightest idea what I'm talking about. Two years ago, a group of students first approached the administration with a proposal to build additional housing for the students who could not get accommodations in residence here at the university. The committee amended a resolution to follow the progress of the students' plans, and had supposedly stated that they would not fund the project beyond land (of course this was never put down in writing that it was said). Every time some thing was done the administration wanted something else. Now they have everything they need, save money and they are here to see if the administration will recognize their plans.

Ronald Chrysler was the voice for the Administration as he denounced the Co-op ideas and suggested that instead of lending the money to students to do the work, why not just do it themselves. However, the students program has one clause in its description of the new residence that is not in the Administration's, AFFORDABLE HOUSING.

The Co-op organization's budgeted plans were estimated out to $17,000.00 per bed, (300 beds) totaling 5 million dollars, for what Simon Chapelle called "a building with rooms more conducive to studying, as compared with the more commonly seen concrete slabs which most students live in. "The administration's cost came out to be $25,000.00 for just 200 rooms totaling 5 million dollars.

Lionel Rudd, the spokesperson for LUFA and a Building and Planning Committee member had asked whether it was more affordable for the University to oversee the work rather than the students, and was told that was not the point, even though the students were going to help construct the building and administer it as well, it was the principle of why should we trust the students instead of doing it for ourselves. Unfortunately, this idea of the administration not wanting "to stick its neck out" was consistent throughout the entire meeting.

As the coffin was being sealed on the co-operative's hopes, Richard asked that if their feasibility study and set plans are not good enough, then maybe the students could participate in the planning of the administrations buildings. That would be nice to see, but last time the administration included students in on the residences it involved the colour of drapes in U.C., who knows, this time it could mean carpet.

The Pardon Beggars An Entertainment Profile

by David Popovich
Cord - Cup

The Canadian identity is something which has been criticized and condemned, however never truly recognized. From a North American perspective we have never distinguished a tangible personality which easily recognizable. However, if one looks to the Canadian music scene they can discern a definite character which is unique unto itself. To identify this particular element in our national songs is impossible. I'm sure at one time or another you've been unable to put your finger on what exactly it is that you like, or for that matter dislike about something. This is precisely the case with musical Canadians. It seems to be more an intuitive feeling than one of logical analysis. Simply speaking the music just has a "feel" all it's own.

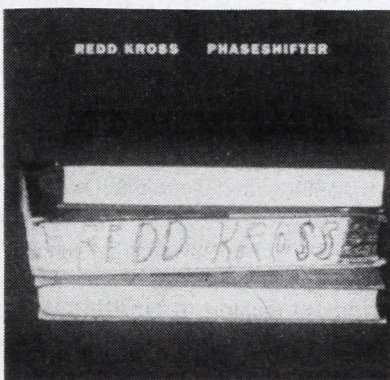

This is exceptionally true with the music of the Pardon Beggars and their recent release, Golly, gee...Shucks. This collectively Canadian band, whose line-up seems to have been shuffled more than a few times has been jamming since late 1989. In their nearly four years together the band has gone through a slew of full-time, part-time or fill-in-beggars. At present the gang includes Shawn Rahbek, Trevor Hutchinson, Jimi G Gelcer, Pete Hudson and Robin Wark. With various vocal and instrumental talents the group is able to slide across the diverse musical spectrum, enhancing their song's dynamic form as well as its soulful essence.

There is a vast range of styles throughout the release spanning from groovy little numbers like "Lighten up Francis" and "The Duke Speaks" to the more country stomp'n' tune, "Goin' to the Opera". The disc also includes tracks such as "Upon Hearing You Disagree" which project more serious overtones within the bands' music. Contributing to a number of these songs are a few of the Beggars' friends, the likes of which include Dave Wall, (lead singer of the Bourbon Tabernacle Choir), Sarah McElcheran, Gregory Hoskins and Leroy Sibbles, (members of Anyhowtown) and Jimmy Amaro, recognized for his efforts in the Toronto jazz scene.

One would assume that the complexity and the distinctiveness of the various tracks would tax the band's capabilities. However, throughout the entire release each song is performed with musical perfection. The varying forms never hinder or exceed the abilities of the group. This release combines the best of all of the Pardon Beggars' talents into an exclusive work which for the most part can only add to our Canadian identity.

Redd Kross Phaseshifter

L.A.'s Redd Kross has been kicking out its trash-punk-pop since the early '80's, but only now is the band getting its due on the incredible strength of its latest release, phaseshifter. Redd Kross is one of those rare bands that manages to weave tuneful melodies and catchy choruses into its songs without sacrificing power. Phaseshifter is awash with grungy, bone-crunching guitar, and pounding drums, along with the tuneful melodies and catchy choruses the band is famous for. Standout tracks include "Jimmy's Fantasy," "Huge Wonder," "and the hooky "Only A Girl."

Concrete Blonde - Mexican Moon

On Mexican Moon, L.A.'s Concrete Blonde returns to the rawer, edgier sound the band first became known for in the late '80's. This is the intense, dark, angry, and gritty side of America, and more specifically, Los Angeles. While singer-writer Johnette Napolitano isn't offering any trite solutions on Mexican Moon, she is casting light on the problems that live in the darkness of the American inner city. Napolitano's strength has always been her ability to convey stark emotions - anger and pain - in amazingly accessible songs that are both arresting and hummable. Beautiful melodies are abound on Mexican Moon, the heart of which is the raw, swampy, psycho-rock of such tracks as "Heal it Up", "Jonestown", "Jesus Forgive Me (For the Things I'm About to Say)," and "Jenny I Read."

Tom Petty - Greatest Hits

Steve Martinovich
Staff Writer

18 tracks make up this retrospective of Tom Petty and the Heart Breakers. Culled from 1976's "Tom Petty and the Heart Breakers" to their most recent release "Into the Great Wide Open" (1991), it also includes two extra tunes. The package does live up to its name by including such tracks like "American Girl", "Refugee", "Even the Losers", "Don't Come Around Here No More", "I Won't Back Down", "Free Fallin'", "Learning to Fly", and "Into the Great Wide Open". I think the most interesting aspect of this package is how Petty and his band matured over the 17 years this compilation covers. One sees how they progressed from the beginning with producer Denny Cordell all the way to Jeff Lynne's influence concerning the layering of songs like paintings and finally Rick Rubin with his simpler approach to music. Also interesting are the various messages that Petty includes in his music, from his obvious dislike of the music business and it's treatment of the artists to the anger of "Refugee". Each song is a message about something that has influenced Petty's life, be it his house being burned down by an arsonist or the Gulf War. If you're a Petty fan then you can't go wrong with this one. If you're ambiguous about him, I still urge you to pick it up, I think you'll end up liking it.

Burnt Colonels - Rituals

Steve Martinovich
Staff Writer

These boys from the north (North Bay as a matter of fact) are newcomers to the metal scene, and they look like they have a bright future. Some you may remember them from the Coulson's Battle of the Bands competition awhile back. For those of who were not there, they scored big with the crowd (but unfortunately not the judge). Their debut, a 5-song EP, is a strong showing in the clogged genre of metal. Recorded in North Bay, the CD gave me the feeling that while listening to it, I was in a bar with them. The music doesn't let up for a second, almost nailing you to the wall, forcing you to listen to it. Lyrically, the band still needs to develop, but what they've done on this EP shows that they have a solid basis for the future. With a song like "Weight of the World", which deals with suicide, you know that these five guys are going to make a name for themselves in the world of metal.

One Person's Trashed Heart is Another's Treasure

by Diane Mason

I have a friend who tells me that it's as difficult to dump someone as it is to be dumped. Never having dumped anyone, with the possible exception of my narcoleptic psychiatrist, I'm not really in a position to comment on the awkwardness of being the Dumper. However, as a erstwhile Dumpee, I would like to establish a sort of ground rules.

1. If you are a known Dumper, please post warnings. Tell people you are faithless and insecure, prone to scurry off at the first sign of trouble, and make sure you blame it on your rotten childhood. That way you can abdicate responsibility for the damage done.

2. Dump only in restricted areas. Dumping in a public place is forbidden, as is dumping from a distance, i.e., via telephone. You are not canceling an order for pizza; you are Dumping. Take responsibility for the mess you make, and do it privately, intimately and neatly.

3. Be sanitary. When you dump, don't spread it around. Keep it in a contained area.

4. Dump as infrequently as possible. If you're the sort of person that consumes humanity with vampiristic abandon, only to bemoan the bloody diarrhea that follows, make sure that you confine yourself to a hermetically sealed space for extended periods of celibacy and/or isolation, to give the environment a chance to recover.

Otherwise, you may find people forming support groups to recover from you Dumping. You may walk sown the street, believing yourself recovered from your horrible experience as Dumper, only to find people stumbling about wearing T-shirts emblazoned with slogans like, "I SURVIVED BEING DUMPED BY (X)."

These suggestions may make the experience of Dumping easier on a virgin Dumper. Experienced Dumpers may have their own style, such as a contrite, hangdog, mea culpa attitude, or the ability to move on to the next victim with a sort of bullish determination to wrest a normal relationship from the hands of fate.

Some turn to distractions: pedantic domesticity works well, until of course a really significant distraction wanders by and the Domestic Partner of the Month (Year? Week?) finds him/herself joining the T-shirted Dumpee support group.

Dumpers are a misunderstood lot, if my friend is correct. They are out there nursing wounds as well, often bigger wounds than those of the Dumpees. However, a Dumper, be s/he a neophyte or an experienced individual with many Dumpings on record, must ensure that the refuse left in the wake of a Dumping is not so completely damaged that it cannot be re-used.

Dumping is a cyclical exercise, both for Dumper and Dumpee. Hopefully some learning and some experience can be drawn from the wreckage. In this age of recycling, it is unconscionable that the human heart (made of material so durable it cannot be broken down by ordinary means) is regularly, repetitively and inhumanely trashed.

Ten Tantalizing Tongue Twisters of Tenuous Taste

1. The seething seas ceaseth and thus the seething sea sufficeth us. (used by legendary radio newscaster Lowell Thomas as a warm-up for his shows).

2. Betty Botter bought a bit of butter. "But," she said, "this butter's bitter. If I put it in my batter, it will make my batter bitter. But a bit of better butter will make my batter better." So Betty Botter bought a bit of better butter, and it made her batter better. (Sir Laurence Olivier's favorite warm-up tongue twister)

3. Three gray geese in the green grass grazing: Gray were the geese and green was the grazing. (Favorite of the late Metropolitan opera star Ezio Pinza.)

4. Moses supposes his toeses are roses, but Moses supposes erroneously. For Moses he knowses his toeses aren't roses, as Moses supposes his toeses to be. (Sophia Loren's English teacher made her practice this one).

5. The sixth sick sheik's sixth sheep's sick. (The most difficult on-line tongue twister according to the Guinness Book of World Records).

6. Amidst the mists and coldest frosts, with barest wrists and stoutest boasts, he thrust his fist against the posts, and still insists he sees the ghosts. (A favorite of many dentists who make patients with new dentures practice by saying tongue twisters).

7. Iqaqa laziqikaqika kwaze kwazhawaka uqhoqhoqha. (The most difficult one-line foreign language tongue twister, according to Guinness. South African dialect).

8. She sells seashells by the seashore, etc., etc. (Because actor Boris Karloff had a bit of a lisp, this was the one he'd practice saying on a regular basis).

9. Theophilus Thistle, the thistle-sifter, sifted a sieve of unsifted thistles. If Theophilus Thistle, the thistle-sifter, sifted a sieve of unsifted thistles, where is the sieve of unsifted thistles Theophilus Thistle, the thistle sifter, sifted?" (Many tongue-twister buffs agree this is the toughest one of them all).

10. Truly rural. (Or preshrunk shirt. Or Peggy Babcock. Or Sixty-six sick chicks.) These are the shortest.

Mathematical Puzzles

Hear are a few classical, and original puzzles for you to chew on. There should be something to interest everyone, and we hope they are challenging. Everyday common sense and a little agility are all you'll need; you won't need calculus, computers, alertness to tricks, or specialized knowledge, though sometimes they may be helpful. I will award prizes for the best set of solutions to the puzzles. Just submit them to the Lambda office in the student centre (You can drop by or put it in campus mail). Good Luck! (note: the questions get more difficult as you go on!)

1. In TIC-TAC-TOE, how many opening moves are there? And how many replies, of pairs of opening moves, are possible? How often can the second player win?

2. Ask a friend to think of any 2-digit number and keep it secret, but to tell you the difference between the two digits. Now have him/her
a) transpose the digits to form a second two-digit number, and
b) subtract the smaller two-digit number from the larger, but not tell you!

Can you tell him/her what this difference is?

3. Will any one of the millions of people to be born in the nineties be older than any one of the millions born in the eighties?

4. A single shipwrecked sailor floats up to a small island and is greeted by three natives. Knowing that cannibals always lie, and non-cannibals always tell the truth, he asks each in turn, "Are you a cannibal?" The first man's answer is inaudible. The second man's: "The first man said he is not a cannibal. He is not; neither am I." The third reply: "Both those men are lying. They're both cannibals. I'm not." What is each man?

5. What is the next number in this series, if the product of any two numbers is one less than a square?
1,3,8?

Transit Tribulations

by Celeste Owens
contributor

For those students who live off-campus, and do not have the privilege of owning a car, the daily ritual of taking the transit can be a depressing phenomenon. It is bad enough that we have to wait outside in torrential rain, or soggy snow, but its a real piss-off when something else goes wrong - like it always does. I'm certain that most people can relate to the following list:

"Top ten things that piss you off about the Sudbury Transit."

1. When the bus is 15 minutes late and you have a test to write.
2. When you storm out the door, and the buss passes-by (even if you wave your arms and jump, the bus driver pretends not to see you).
3. When the bus stops and the driver announces that everyone has to get on another bus (what is this anyway... musical buses?)
4. When you are waiting at a bus stop and every car that passes-by goes racing for puddles that are nearest to you.
5. When the bus driver decides to skip Laurentian and go directly to Algoma Hospital.
6. When someone who looks like a mass murderer gets on the bus, and the only empty seat is beside you.
7. When you ring the bell to get off the bus and the driver forgets to stop.
8. When you bring your groceries on the bus and the bags break.
9. When you forget your bus-pass at home.
10. The biggest piss-off of all is "Stop, try again."

Houses, Ascendants, and Sex, Oh My!

by Zodiak
Columnist

Well, I am still a sick puppy, but I hope I have regained my natural state of mind (which is twisted, of course!). As if you couldn't tell by the title, the topics of the week are Houses and Ascendants (also called Rising-signs). I haven't forgotten about the sex part, BELIEVE ME; I've been wearing purple all week... The Houses and the Ascendant affect the Sun-sign. You will learn how to approximate your own astrological chart (most of it anyway). Now, this stuff can be complicated if you forgot how to read; I realize that your brain is overloaded/hung-over these days, so I'll try to keep things as simple as possible. Don't just sit there, get a pencil and a paper!

There are twelve Houses in the zodiac, one for each sign. These Houses have certain characteristics which reveals something about YOU: the way you think, the way you handle money, what your hormonal capacities are, etc... Your astrological chart will tell you which sign influences you the most in each House. Here's a chart of the Houses.

NUMBER	HOUSE	CHARACTERISTICS
one	personality	potentialities, appearance, outlook
two	money	possessions, business, budgeting
three	relatives	education, correspondance, outside family
four	home	immediate family, neighbours, origins
five	pleasure	recreation, attempts, children
six	health	work, domestic chores, body
seven	marriage	partnerships, enemies, mates, SEX
eight	death	secret deals, difficulties, inheritances
nine	travel	intellectual affairs, religion, long journeys
ten	honor	profession, reputation, ambition, social status
eleven	friendship	objectives, social life, luck
twelve	trouble	illness, secret enemies, betrayals, disgrace

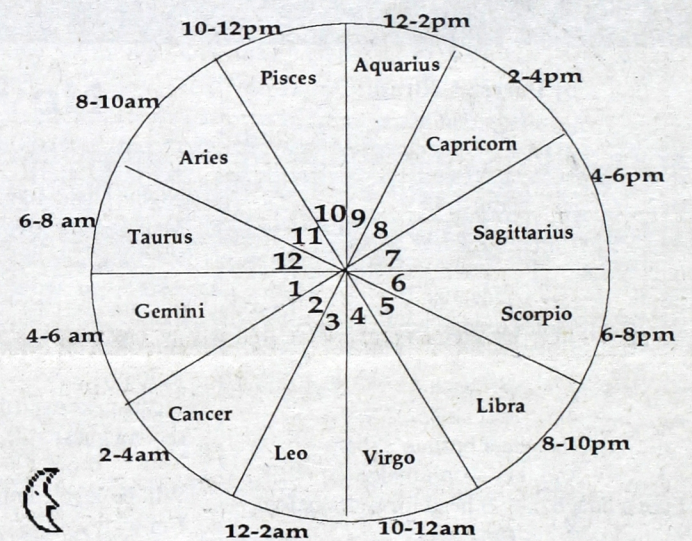

In order to give you an idea of how this works, let's say that you have Scorpio in the first House. You will have great potential to achieve what you desire (I don't know about the brains!). Your appearance will be one of confidence and pervertedness, while your outlook on life will tend to resemble either a horror movie or a triple x flick. If your honor House is dominated by Pisces, you could have some fun. A strong fish will find ways to achieve what is desired and actually obtain the gratitude deserved. People will either respect you or think of ways to remove some of your vital organs through your nostrils. If you're a soft shell Pisces, you will either be ignored or considered annoying... To find out which sign belongs to which House, you must discover your Ascendant/Rising sign. So what do you think I am going to talk about next? Do you have a clue?

Your Ascendant is "muy importante". It is always in the first House and therefore, colours your personality. You need the month, day, and time of your birth to do this. If you don't have it, you're FUBARed, big time! The month gives you your Sun-sign, the date gives you the location of the moon (which is useful in serious, hair-ripping astrology) and the time gives you your Ascendant. (This is starting to sound more and more like an essay to me!) Make a circle and divide it into twelve equal segments. In the "time slot" of 8 to 9 o'clock, put number one. Then, going counterclockwise, number each segment until you reach twelve. These are the number of the Houses. In house number one, indicate 4-6 a.m. Then going clockwise, write in two hour interval in each House. Once this is done, put your sun-sign in the house that holds your birth time. Going counter-clockwise, write in the remaining signs in order. The sign you have assigned to the first house is your ascendant. Now, wasn't that easy? I thought so, here's an example.

This person was born at 9:14 p.m. on September 24. This Libra Sun-sign has Gemini as an ascendant. Now, a word on signs that are on the cusp: if your date or time of birth is close to another sign or "time slot", you probably have some of it's influence. Read up on those signs too.

Now, about sex. It's not a good idea to have a mate who is alot like you. You need variety and new experiences. For example; if a Scorpio goes out with a Taurus or another Scorpio, it is BAD BAD BAD news. Both of these signs are the sex-machines of the zodiac, which means they would never get anything else done in their lives. Their obsession would bring in many WEIRD twists and might even end up killing one of them. On the other hand a Gemini and an Aquarius would be so rapped up in each of their own little worlds that they would probably forget they were together, NOT GOOD! So look for a sign that balances your taste but not the opposite...because then both of you get frustrated. You need to find a middle bed/ground in order to have a better sex life. Please, communicate with your partner, even if you have to tie him/her down...and always be protected. See ya!

Castration and Other Surefire Ways to Prevent Baldness

by Tim Clark

It was the Greek physician Hippocrates who first noted that eunuchs never lost their hair. However accurate the observation, it remains perhaps the only potential cure for hair loss that never really caught on.

Baldness in men is not quite as inevitable as death and taxes. About one in every five men begins to go bald right after puberty and is completely bald right after puberty and is completely bald by age 30; three out of five gradually lose their hair between the ages of 30 and 60. And even then his hair will literally grow thinner each individual hair diminishing in diameter about 15% between the ages of 50 and 70.

It's not a new problem either. Mexican cave paintings show that prehistoric men lost their hair too. The earliest recorded baldness remedy dates back to 4000 B.C, when the mother of King Chata of Egypt recommended rubbing the balding head vigorously with a mixture of ground-up dogs paws, dates and asses' hooves, cooked in oil. In later centuries, desperate men massaged their scalps with everything from boiled snakes and cow urine to the blood of murdered babies, to no avail.

The search for the cause of baldness has taken some bizarre turns.

At various times and in various places, baldness has been blamed on using a dead persons comb, allowing rain to fall on a bare head during the Dog Days, and allowing cut hair to be thrown out where birds can make nests with it. The shape of the skull has been blamed on the premise that a high-domed configuration tightens the skin so much that blood flow to the follicles is reduced. A slightly different version of this theory came from two psychiatrists who speculated that laughter and broad smiles, by tightening the muscles controlling the scalp could constrict the blood supply and make the jolly man bald.

Folk remedies have included eating parsnips daily; rubbing the scalp with an onion; regular bathing with salt water, sage tea, or rum; and pomades of buffalo oil, axle grease, cow manure, and mud from a river that has been dry at least two months. Another prescription is to spread milk or cream on the bald spot, and let a cat lick it off.

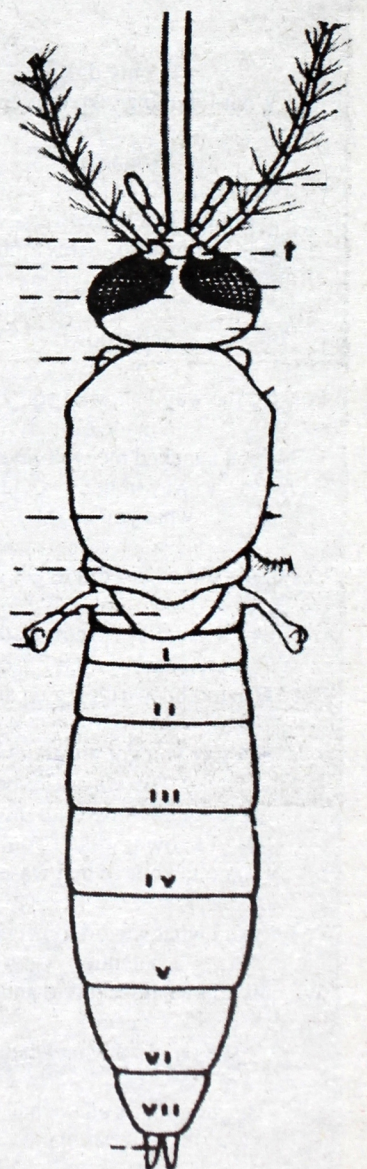

The Greek physician Hippocrates tried a number of remedies, including a poultice of cumin, crushed horseradish, beet root, and pigeon droppings. More significantly, he observed that boys castrated before puberty to become eunuchs never grew bald. it was a surefire cure, but one that never gained much popularity.

But Hippocrates was on to something, a link between male sex hormones and baldness that is still being unraveled by scientists today. Aristotle thought that sexual intercourse caused baldness - Rabelais, to no ones suprise, thought the opposite was true. For a while, bald men could take comfort or even pride in the theory that hair loss was caused by an unusual abundance of the male sex hormone testosterone. however, more recent research shows that bald men actually have no more of the hormone than men with hair. They do have twice the number of testosterone receptors and double the amount of an enzyme needed for testosterone metabolism - thus, they have an increased capacity of the hormone, which causes the death of hair follicles. "You're really not more virile" said researcher Marty Sawaya.

So the quest for a cure continues, and in the meantime, bald men buy toopees, or have new hair woven to the old, or get their scalps tightened or dotted with plugs of hair from other parts of their bodies. A few even cover up small bald spots with spray paint. Whatever the cure, the issue is vanity, and I can assure you dear readers, that when my curly locks disappear, I shall be the first in line for help!

Ms. Man-ners

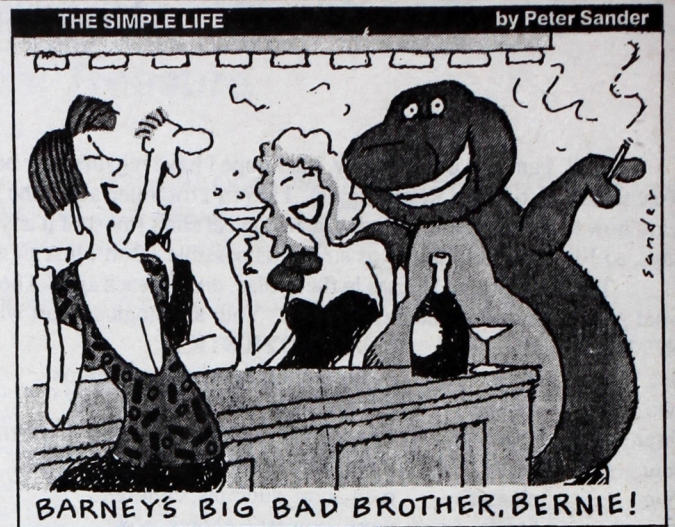

by Judith Fartin
columnist

Ms. Manners has noticed a particularly nasty habit among Laurentian students that has her going about wearing mittens and trying to open doors with her sleeve. No, the chilly Sudbury climate is not the cause of her mummy-like attire, it's an epidemic of the worst kind.

Yes, Gentle Readers, just as most of you would not wish to grip the seat of a public toilet with both hands and then proceed to eat a hamburger, so do the rest of us not wish to touch the toilet germs of people who can't be bothered to wash their hands after they go to the bathroom.

Ms. Manners has never seen the inside of a men's washroom, but knows from experience that this is a real problem with females. You've all seen it happen. First, the closing of the stall door, next the tell-tale flush, and just as you're making room at the sink, the door flies open and the perpetrator is gone—free without a backward glance to spread their bathroom germs to bannisters, door-handles, even that lovely croissant in the Great Hall.

Ms. Manners would like to take this opportunity to request that those of you who missed kindergarten please take the time to wash your hands, if not for the sake of being germ-free, then for fanatics like herself who are appalled and saddened by this obvious breach of good manners.

Did You Know That...

Before I start this weeks trivia, I'd like to thank my readers for the overwhelming enthusiasm I've heard regarding this column. A few faculty members have even confessed that they're learning stuff they've never heard or imagined before. I hope everyone is finding it as entertaining as I am (Although the Library staff may be a little disgruntled over the bursts of laughter coming from the circulation shelves). Anyway, Enjoy!

- Glenn Scott, Entertainment Editor

In one study 22% of males polled said their orgasms go more intense after the age of 35. 52% said that their climaxes were better when the lovemaking was prolonged and prolonging lovemaking could be argued is a skill that comes with experience.

Nonmasturbating boys under the age of 15 years old average 12 wet dreams a week. Sixty-year old men average one every two weeks.

About 10% of all women have a perfect excuse for not swallowing sperm; They are allergic to sperm. One woman, a patient at New York University medical Center reported that her husband's condom ruptured when he orgasmed. Within the hour she was covered with hives from head to toe and her eyes were swollen shut.

For 2/3 of all men, weasel-squeezing was their first method of obtaining orgasm. About 80% of all masturbators use the hand method while the minority rub themselves against pillows, mattresses, etc.

The longest fit of sneezing ever recorded is that of Donna Griffiths. She started sneezing on Jan. 13 1981 - 1983. It is estimated that she sneezed one million times in the first 365 days.

Some Australian bushmen undergo a bizarre penis ritual whereby the heads are cut into two halves (like a fork). Researchers were baffled by this until they realized that the tribesmen were simply attempting to acquire genitals more closely resembling those of one of their totem animals. The Aussie natives have great admiration for the male kangaroo a rather silly-looking beast which sports a bifurcated or forked penis.

Circumcision is a tribal affair for the Polynesians of Mangaia. In the teenage boy's grueling rite of manhood the foreskin is drawn over an anvil made of coconut shell and cut off before the entire clan.

The biggest feet known are those of Haji Mohammad Alam Channa of Pakistan, who wears size 22 sandals (and we all know what foot size is indicative of).

Never Ending

Yes
I only did
What I did to get your attention
& now
I understand
The reason I used to no reflection

Sit back
Feel alone
Let the water buffalo's roam
And they won't budge
I got a hunch they'll head for water before sundown

Yes
I only did
What I did to get your attention

Brain-pan
On a line
I know that there's a season
In our hands - there's a field
Off the road where everything's forgotten

Show down
Your love
Forgive the way I showed you what I was made of
But you attacked me well into the night
There was no way in hell I could have seen what you might

Yes I only did what I did to get your attention
And yes I'll stand in the cost of this mistake
You were hearing what I had to say
But I was too busy tripping on another day

A day you got my attention
By way of force
A revolution
I know it wasn't you
You gotta believe that wasn't me

We only did what we did to get each other's attention
We only did what we did to announce our need
We only did what we did

Because that's all we had that day in the scramble
of LOVE

Nights alone I know too well
Memories of love everlasting; now stained with bitter tears
As a lover and a friend; well, time and effort would mend
But when the beast of immaturity rears its ugly head, as jealousy;
it can make even the purest and most innocent of hearts
second guess

Will he love completely, forever true? Always When I'm with you
Will he be there for me, when I am blue? You need not ask these questions my love is true

All that you are and all that you must be, I am with you even if you are not with me
You were a different person then, as I am now
I knew your secret places; your personal thoughts; and dreams
Have they changed. I've missed you for so long

What we have lost is time; spent growing; learning about ourselves
This deed is done
What would be worse to lose is the future, Love Happiness and Fun
Search yourself, and find the truth
Come to me, before we lose our youth.

A Look Back: Plumbing and Sanitation in the Good(?) Old Days.

by Kenneth Mirvis

-It wasn't so long ago that bathing was considered dangerous. And do you dare imagine why most bathrooms or privies were supplied with a pile of mussel shells?

St. Francis of Assisi, one of history's true lovers of life, taught that dirtiness was a sign of holiness. St. Jerome was ashamed of his followers because they were too clean. St. Catherine of Sienna publicly gave up washing for good, and St. Agnes reputedly died without ever having washed. They could have kept themselves clean, they just didn't want to.

Knowledge of sanitation, in fact, has been with us for centuries. More than 4000 years ago, residents of the island of Crete built a palace that included a fresh water supply, a complete sewage system, and even wooden-seated flushing toilets. Nevertheless, almost 3,800 years passed before the toilet came into widespread use.

Despite painfully slow advances, in sanitary practices (and sometimes their disappearance altogether), plumbing has been with us throughout written history. In imperial Rome, for example, elegant communal baths accommodated as many as 3000 people. However bathing was not necessarily for getting clean. The baths were social gathering places, suitable for conversation, relaxation, and who knows what else. In Rome the sexes remained segregated, in the baths of the Ottoman Empire, they did not. These Turkish baths in fact, contained small private rooms called "bördellos" where, it seems, most behaviors were permissible.

Historical society simply did not know how to deal with the problems created by themselves. For example, in 1859, Parliament in London actually had to be suspended for a short time because of the unbearable stench.

Perhaps such fearfulness about things related to hygiene or bodily functions provides and explanation for a particularly interesting plumbing-related phenomenon. For 4,000 years the place where one goes to do his or her "business" has never had a straight-forward name. The bath or bathroom, after all, is not just for taking a bath, and the "necessary room" is a little oblique. The Israelis went to the "house of honour"; the Egyptians, to the "House of the morn-everyone had to go - now known as the "John". Even sailors, a hardy lot with a reputation for direct language, go to the "head".

Another favorite is the "loo". The word entered the vocabulary in one of several ways. Whenever a Frenchman tossed a load from his window, he first hollered, "Gardez l'eau" - watch out for the water. It was shortened to l'eau and soon became loo. Or, another story goes, it derived from an abbreviation of a common name for the necessary room, la chambre sent, the smelly room. Apparently in order to avoid being quite so crude, the people changed the "s" to a "c" - la chambre cent, and the common name for the bathroom became Room 100. Soon the numeral 100 became loo and the name stuck.

Of course, before leaving the necessarium, the user must have brief encounter with toilet paper - or some culturally appropriate equivalent. Toilet paper as we know it dates back to 1880 when it was introduced by the British Perforated Paper Company. Before that time, the cleaner of choice in the West was a scraper, usually a mussel shell. In the world's eastern countries, people ate only with their right hand; the left hand had another function (and to this day it is considered extremely gauche, so to speak, to eat with one's left hand in the Far East). The Romans used a stick with a sponge on one end - from here comes the expression "the wrong end of the stick." In desert regions, sand was the cleaner of choice. In Georgia, there was the trusty corn-cob, and of course, all throughout North America was the trusty Sears-Roebuck catalog. One mathematically inclined privy manager once estimated that if a Sears catalog were placed in a family's three holer in January, they'd be to the harness section by June, if they didn't have too many visitors.

But cleansing by means of paper was not limited to the pages of the Sears catalog - any paper worked just fine. As one diligent correspondent replied to a friend after receiving a letter, "I am seated in the necessary house. I have your letter before me. Soon it will be behind me."

Guys Wouldn't be Half the Jerks We Are If Girls Weren't so Naive!

We do not wish to be disrespectful towards women, in fact we love them very much, which could be actually considered as our downfall. Have you ever noticed how assholes always end up with the best chicks. Why? It's because they are smoothoooo! And we are smooth because women are willing to believe any crazy line we feed them. All we do is put on our cute smiles and pretend to be interested (not interested). Ladies don't kid yourselves, you may not believe that you fit into this category...but you do. Please do not be insulted by this. We are not trying to be nasty, rather we are trying to prevent women from further heartbreak. When we hurt you, we hurt ourselves also.

For example picture this. Ladies, you are talking to a guy who is trying to wheel you, and you ask him if he is seeing/going out with someone else. Well, unless his woman is within earshot the automatic answer is "No" (especially if alcohol is involved). We are sorry, we are after all only men, and quite often the word is out our mouth before our brain has even registered saying it. Of course we won't admit which brain we are thinking with. Why you ask? Because we are born without some essential elements of humanity, namely a conscience, we therefore do not feel guilt.

The next example is our favorite. Once we have landed you, this question will inevitably arise: "Are you cheating on me?/Did you sleep with her?" Ladies, let's get real, what a stupid question to ask. Like we are going to tell you anyway.

Another vulnerable aspect of the female psyche is that in general - females are much more emotional than guys; and as much as we hate to admit it - we prey upon this. Remember, if we control your emotions, we control you! Perhaps that is the reason we can say what we please. To us they are only words and they mean what we want them to say, whereas you hear them as what you want them to mean. In addition to this point, compliments are another old trick - if we say you look thin or young - that is the female psyche we are playing with. Remember if a line sounds rehearsed...it probably is. Now then, since we have pointed out easy it is to manipulate young and old feminine types, to show you what nice guys we are, we are including a list of helpful hints to avoid meeting us.

1. If we can't remember your name...forget it.
2. If we call out the wrong name...forget it.
3. If you have to provide protection...forget it.
4. If the story sound fishy, it probably is.
5. If we say we are sorry, don't believe us because the only thing we are sorry about is getting caught.
6. If we say that you are the only one and the other one is just a friend, we are lying.
7. Avoid anyone who tries this line: "If I hurt anyone it was me."
8. We'll always blame you, so if you constantly find yourself at fault...run!
9. If you see pictures of other girls in our room, trust me - they are not our cousins.
10. In a social environment ie. a bar avoid this line "If I wanted sex, I could be with any chick here, but I really want to be with you."
11. If you don't understand the line, avoid it, for example if you hear this: "Honestly, I don't want to invalidate your feelings." Run!
12. And ladies, please, please, please, please, avoid any guy who tries this line, "If I didn't care about you so much, why would I try so hard?"

So ladies, please don't take this too hard, you are dealing with extremely professional, well seasoned, sly and crafty veterans. But we are not all like this, the others of us are at the library, or at church. Remember, this informative article was written with the hope of preventing further heartache from striking the female population of Laurentian.

Roast Chicken

If you're hankering for a home-cooked Sunday dinner, this will trigger nostalgia while it's still in the oven.

Chart for roasting stuffed chicken:

Weight	Temperature	Time
1 1/2 to 3 lbs (0.7 to 1.5 kg)	350°F (180°C)	1 to 2 hrs.
3 1/2 to 5 lbs (1.7 to 2.3 kg)	325°F (160°C)	2 to 3 hrs.
5 1/2 to 7 lbs (2.5 to 3.2 kg)	325°F (160°C)	3 to 4 hrs.

Preheat oven according to weight of chicken.

Rinse chicken with cold water, drain and pat dry. Pack body and neck cavities with stuffing (recipe follows). Close openings by piercing with skewers and winding string or thread (not polyester, it melts) around skewers. Tie drumsticks together.

Place bird in roasting or baking pan. Baste occasionally.

Bird is done when thickest part of drumstick feels soft when pressed and when the juices that run when the leg joint is pierced with a fork show no traces of pink.

Don't Start Without:
roasting pan
skewers
thread or string
large fork
large spoon

Helpful Hints:

- If you have extra stuffing, wrap it in aluminum foil and place in baking pan next to the bird.
- A nice touch is to brush 1/4 cup (60 mL) melted butter or margarine over the chicken. This makes the skin golden brown.
- If you don't wish to stuff the chicken, you can just baste it with butter or margarine and put it in the oven. Chicken will cook slightly faster. Reduce cooking time by five minutes per pound.
- Don't use a cookie sheet unless you are desperate for a pan, because juices tend to spill over.

- Remember to remove giblet pieces from the cavity of the chicken before washing and stuffing it.
- Do not stuff bird until immediately before cooking. Never store stuffing inside the bird. It can become contaminated and cause poisoning.
- Don't forget to save the bones for making stock for Chicken Soup (see Chapter 5).
- If you don't own skewers, you can sew up the chicken with a big needle and thread.

Serving Ideas:

- Bacon on top of the chicken adds flavor and prevents overbrowning.
- Roast chicken must be served with roast potatoes. It's sacrilege not to. Peel and cut potatoes into small pieces and place in roasting pan for last hour of cooking time.

POUR L'AMOUR DU FRANÇAIS

Le français dans tous ces États

Annie Bourret
pris de l'Express

Ce n'est pas la première fois que j'aborde le sujet des régionalismes du français. Si je ne résiste pas à en reparler, c'est que je viens de recevoir un petit bouquin intitulé Les mots de la francophonie de Loïs Depecker, publié chez Belin. Il a de très spécial qu'il donne du vocabulaire de tous les États du monde où le français se parle, avec un accent particulier sur l'Afrique, continent toujours négligé dans les inventaires des régionalismes. L'Ontario, l'Acadie et la Louisiane y figurent également, mais avec un peu moins de bonheur que l'Afrique.

Curieusement, placoter se classe comme un franco-manitobanisme, alors que son usage est largement répandu au Canada. Pour l'Ontario français, on rapporte trois toponymes (noms de lieux), ce qui soulève deux questions. Premièrement, pourquoi inclure des toponymes dans un inventaire de régionalismes et, deuxièmement, pourquoi seulement trois, alors qu'il existe une étude, La toponymie française en Ontario, entièrement consacrée à ce sujet? Comme terre-neuvianisme, on signale banquier, au sens de "pêcheur qui jette ses filets sur les bancs de poissons". Quant à ouaouaron, même si son origine amérindienne est exacte, on l'a classé comme louisianisme!

On comprend mieux le problème de l'auteur quand on consulte sa bibliographie qui comprend de vieux dictionnaires du français nord-américain. Par contre, en ce qui concerne les régionalismes de l'Afrique et des Antilles, l'inventaire me semble plus riche (voir l'encadré), mieux structuré et comptant moins d'erreurs. Cependant, je connais peu ces variétés de français. Aussi, si les lectrices et les lecteurs relèvent des faussetés dans les exemples, j'aimerais bien être informée.

Plusieurs régionalismes renvoient à des réalités particulières, comme l'arbre-caca de la Guyane, qui répand une odeur nauséabonde après avoir été coupé, et l'éléphante-appât du Vietnam, pour la chasse à l'éléphant.

Dans certains cas, les mêmes réalités prennent des noms différents: l'argent-braguette de la Martinique et l'argent-z'enfants de la Réunion s'appellent des allocations familiales ici. Quant à l'expression gros mots, elle prend des sens différents: mots savants ou recherchés au Zaïre et "mots sales" en France. Même chose pour homo, qui constitue une abréviation fort différente selon le pays.

Au Tchad, au Mali, au Burkina Faso et au Cameroun, on l'utilise pour raccourcir homonyme. "C'est nous, homo abrège le terme homosexuel et appartient à la langue populaire."

Le recueil comprend une liste alphabétique des termes, avec termes par domaine (action, administration, argent, climat, famille, humeur, sentiments, politique). Le tour de chapeau, un canadianisme du domaine du hockey, signifie marquer trois buts au cours de la même rencontre.

Je donne cet exemple sous toutes réserves, ma grande connaissance du hockey m'ayant fait demander Qui a gagné la coupe Grey cette année? à un grand passionné rencontré dans une fête chez des amis.

Il ne m'a plus adressé la parole de la soirée! Remarquez que je commettrai plus cet impair. Aujourd'hui, je sais très bien que les vainqueurs des éliminatoires franchissent un ruban Stanley et se font remettre un bouquet de fleurs.

Mais revenons à nos régionalismes. Le lexique de faits grammaticaux notoires de la francophonie (anglicismes, créolismes, féminisation et franglicismes, par exemple) m'apparaît utile, ainsi que les annexes sur la situation de la francophonie dans le monde, par État et région.

Mon verdict, finalement à ce sujet? J'hésite fortement à recommander ce livre sur le plan de la rigueur scientifique. En revanche, le livre présente, d'une façon surprenante, un intérêt certain, en ce qui concerne une prise de conscience de la grande diffusion et de la richesse du français, sur les cinq continents.

Noël est devant la porte!

Carine Schlup
Journaliste

On est au mois de novembre, et de quoi parle-t-on? Noël! Non non je suis sérieuse. Le monde court déjà tout à tord et à travers. Comme s'ils avaient peur que demain plus rien ne sera dans les magasins. C'est la paranoïa générale. Tout le monde croit que si les achats ne sont pas commencés aujourd'hui, qu'ils ne seront pas finis par le 25 décembre.

Surtout le soir on peut voir de quelle façon les gens se grouillent les fesses pour arriver avant leur voisin au magasin. Noël est peut-être une saison de célébration, d'amour et de pardon, mais les jours avant cette joyeuse fête: les gens s'insultent sur le terrain de stationnement parce qu'une personne prend trop de temps à stationner, jurent contre les conducteurs car ils viennent d'asperger une passante avec leur voiture, se marchent sur les pieds en se précipitant dans le magasin, se battent carrément pour avoir la dernière culotte d'une action, et les personnes âgées se donnent des coups de coudes pour faire avancer la ligne à la caisse.

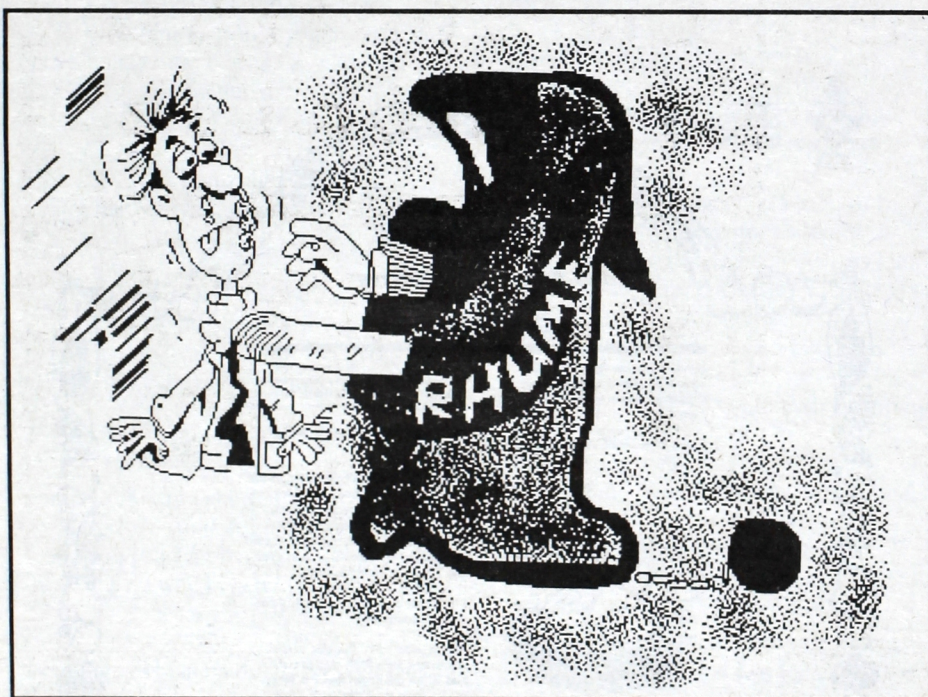

Non mais franchement, c'est littéralement dangereux d'aller faire ses achats. Et par-dessus le marché vous me dites que c'est une saison de gaieté! Vous êtes sûre que le mot n'a pas été mal épilé et que le mot devrait être: "GUETTÉ"

Enfin le monde, moi aussi je veux donner et recevoir des cadeaux, mais je n'ai pas l'intention de participer à ce jeu de "football". Je veux dire Halloween est fini! Plus besoin d'essayer de faire peur à quelqu'un. Et d'ailleurs l'assassinat n'était jamais un beau cadeau pour Noël. Ou est-ce que vous êtes si impatient à dépenser votre argent? En autre mot calmez-vous un peu! Et JOYEUX NOËL!!!

La grippe - Le cauchemar est arrivé

Céleste Owen
journaliste

Faites attention mes amis, l'hiver approche vite, et avec lui, la saison de la grippe. Ahh!!! Que faire? Se cacher sous son lit? Non ce n'est pas la solution, malheureusement. Si la grippe veut t'avoir, tu n'as aucune chance.

Au début, tu te sentiras chaud, ensuite froid, et chaud encore. Les maux de têtes et la fatigue vont t'attirer à ton lit. Lorsque vous n'avez plus envie de faire vos devoirs ce n'est plus la paresse habituelle, mais bel et bien une influence du rhume qui vous guette. Vous êtes un virus qui marche et qui propage ses bactéries envers des gens innocents.

Ne soyez pas induit en erreur par quelqu'un qui a la grippe. Ce n'est pas vrai quand on dit qu'il faudrait avoir pitié avec les malades. Ouvrez vos oreilles et écoutez-moi bien: Éloignez-vous! Sauve qui peut!

Ces gens sont faciles à décerner: Ils marchent en se penchant en avant, ils traînent les pieds, ils ont souvent le nez rouge, les yeux glacés, la mauvaise haleine, les poches pleines de médicaments et un regard de confusion - dû aux sinus enflés qui mettent le cerveau sous une pression intense.

Aussi, n'oubliez pas qu'une route construite de "Kleenex" et des sons comme "Achew" sont aussi des tromperies. Ne suivez pas quelqu'un qui a la grippe, ils n'ont que des virus à partager!

Réponse au test de compétence

Gratien Allaire

Vice-recteur adjoint Enseignement et services en français

Dans votre numéro du 11 novembre dernier, vous avez publié un article sous le nom de Madame Martine Lefebvre sur le "Test de compétence et la performance étudiante". Ces lignes sont tirées d'un document qui n'était pas destiné à la publication. Comme il ne s'agit pas d'un rapport final, ni Madame Lefebvre ni le bureau du vice-recteur adjoint à l'enseignement et aux services en français n'en ont autorisé la parution.

Il s'agit en réalité des résultats d'une enquête demandée par Madame Dyane Adam alors qu'elle occupait le poste de vice-rectrice adjointe. Cette enquête portait sur un nombre limité de facteurs, qui ne permettent que des constatations préliminaires susceptibles de fournir des pistes de recherche et d'avancer des hypothèses. D'ailleurs, lors de sa présentation au Conseil de l'enseignement en français, le document a suscité une longue discussion quant à son contenu et à sa portée. Le Conseil a suggéré une étude plus élaborée de la question, comme le recommandait d'ailleurs la chercheuse.

Une étude plus approfondie permettrait de faire avancer la discussion. Il faudrait inclure aussi les étudiants et les étudiantes qui font le test en cours d'année. Une telle étude pourrait nuancer les résultats au moyen des différentes composantes du test: Compréhension écrite, dictée ou rédaction. Ses auteurs devraient tenir compte d'un plus grand nombre de facteurs, aussi bien sociaux que scolaires. Ils ou elles devraient recevoir l'approbation du Comité de déontologie et impliquer le Centre des langues de même que les étudiants et les étudiantes. Ils ou elles devraient également consulter les écoles secondaires sur la question et solliciter leur contribution afin d'en arriver à une meilleure compréhension de la situation. Cette approche pourrait d'ailleurs servir de base à une collaboration plus étroite entre les deux niveaux de formation.

Il n'est pas inutile de rappeler la raison d'être du test de compétence en rédaction. C'est un des outils dont l'Université Laurentienne se sert pour atteindre un objectif: la compétence en rédaction lors de l'obtention d'un diplôme universitaire.

Comme elle l'indique dans son annuaire, l'Université considère qu'il "existe un lien étroit entre les processus de réflexion et l'expression des idées par écrit" et que "le développement efficace de l'art d'écrire fait partie intégrante de l'apprentissage et constitue une étape obligatoire de la formation". L'Université mesure cette "capacité de bien communiquer par écrit" par le test de compétence en rédaction, qui sert à évaluer le niveau de l'étudiant ou de l'étudiante.

D'une part, le test établit si l'étudiant ou l'étudiante a atteint le niveau de compétence requis (cote 1), et ce, à l'entrée ou au cours de ses études universitaires: d'autre part, il permet de déterminer, à partir de la cote obtenue (cotes 2 à 4), la marche à suivre par l'étudiant ou l'étudiante pour accroître la maîtrise de la langue écrite au cours de ses études et éventuellement dépasser un niveau fonctionnel. Les cours LIP (Langue intégrée au programme) sont destinés à cette fin et le Centre des langues offre une aide supplémentaire.

Le racisme est un crime humanitaire!

Kevin Perrault

Rédacteur français

Lorsqu'on parle de racisme, le monde croit que ça ne peut pas leur arriver. Le dictionnaire Larousse le définit comme étant une: "théorie de la hiérarchie des races, qui conclut à la nécessité de préserver la dite supérieure de tout croisement, et à son droit de dominer les autres." Cela ne vous rappelle quelque chose de la deuxième guerre mondiale? Un certain nommé Hitler, qui voulait la supériorité de la race blanche (grand, yeux bleus, cheveux blancs). Le sémisme ça vous dit de quoi?

Naturellement, je parle en terme général. Mais, pour être plus spécifique, il y a du racisme, ici à l'université! Je sais que ça ne vous surprend pas. Les deux formes de racismes qui sont le plus répandues comprennent la langue et le genre.

Je vais commencer avec celui qui m'a le plus familier. Aussitôt que je suis arrivé à l'Université Laurentienne, je me suis aperçu qu'il y avait une tension extrême entre les francophones et les anglophones. Ma première année, j'ai décidé de rejoindre l'AEF car je suis francophone. Par contre, lorsque je me suis présenté au bureau de l'AEF, je me suis fait rejeter. Je ne parlais pas de la bonne façon! Je n'étais pas un Sudburois donc j'étais un vaurien. Je fus à un tel point offensé que j'ai fait parti de l'AGE pour les deux prochaines années. Mais, là j'en étais pas satisfait! Le conseil de l'AGE était entièrement unilingue anglais. J'ai demandé à l'un des membres de l'exécutif pourquoi les activités n'étaient pas bilingues comme le prétendait l'Association Générale des Étudiants. J'ai été dit que le bilinguisme ne valait pas la peine car les francophones de l'association ne comprennent que 5% des membres. Alors, je suis retourné à l'AEF l'an dernier et j'y suis encore. N'oubliez pas que les tensions linguistiques ont disparus. Au contraire, les étudiant(e)s sont devenu(e)s de plus aptes à démontrer que les coutumes linguistiques sont très différentes. Vous avez sûrement été victimes d'une façon ou d'une autre pendant votre séjour à l'Université que vous soyez anglophone ou francophone.

L'autre forme de racisme, c'est le sexe (non pas le sexe que vous avez dans votre chambre). La tension entre les hommes et les femmes. Les hommes croient encore qu'ils sont les maîtres. C'est malheureux de le dire, mais la plupart des hommes ne veulent pas l'égalité des femmes par peur de perdre leur pouvoir. Par contre, les féministes extrêmes n'améliorent pas les choses, car les hommes se choquent davantage. Vous pouvez voir la preuve de ça dans vos classes, alors je ne vais pas élaborer.

Mais, j'ai peur que si nous, l'ensemble des étudiant(e)s, n'apprennent pas à vivre ensemble, le racisme existera toujours à l'Université et cela pourrait causer des problèmes graves! Les incendies des autres universités pourraient être une réalité ici!

Moi

Poème

Les faibles rayons du soleil réchauffent, avec douceur les terres, pour si longtemps, gelées.

Comme les fleurs du printemps
mon cœur s'éveille
sous le charme de la saison.

Mes pas me mènent vers toi.
Tu me tends la main...
Mon cœur bat sous la chaleur de l'été.

Mon ombre s'installe, fièrement, derrière ces deux personnes,
qui se promettent, de partager leur chemin...

Le vent se lève, les traces sur le sable se séparent, abandonnant
mon ombre, troublée par les feuilles de l'automne.

Tu aimais la carapace souriante mais tu ne voulais pas voir la personne qui aurait tant voulu se fier à toi.

Mon ombre bat encore
grâce au soleil de l'hiver
Mais elle meurt, lentement, gelée dans la blanche froideur...

ANNONCES PUBLIQUES

Le club d'allemand de l'UL invite la communauté à participer à une série de déjeuner vidéo documentaires portant sur des villes et régions de l'Allemagne. Les documentaires offrent des images et des renseignements à jour sur la vie dans différentes parties de ce pays. Les vidéos sont en allemands et sous-titrés en anglais. Chaque documentaire sera présenté à deux reprises lors de journées différentes. Les documentaires seront présentés chaque mardi de 11h30 à 12h30 et chaque jeudi de 12h30 à 13h30. Admission gratuite!

Le club d'allemand vous invite pour une soirée de cinéma avec le film "Sugar Babies". Film allemand avec sous-titre en anglais. Cela se déroulera dans la salle SCE-239 à 18h00 le 25 novembre. Venez en grand nombre! Admission gratuite!

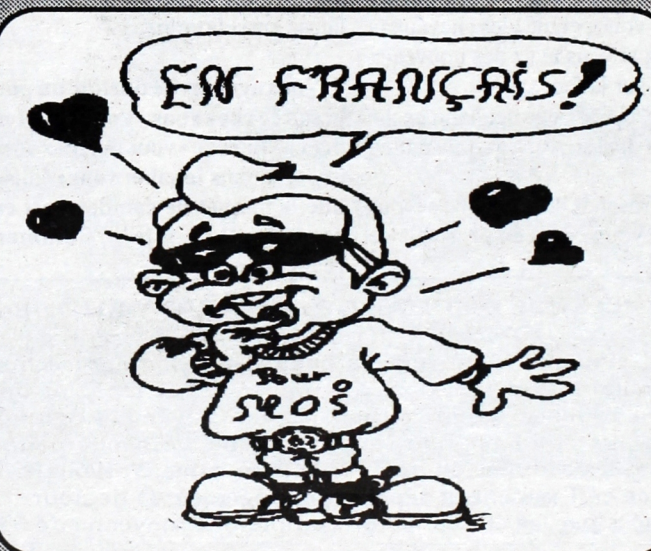

Le club d'allemand vous invite à acheter des télégramme de Noël du 1-3 décembre de 10h00 à 14h00 devant la cafétéria et dans le Centre Étudiant. Les télégrammes seront distribués le 6 décembre sur tout le campus! (Résidences, Classes, Départements)

Le club d'allemand tiendra une fête de Noël le 2 décembre dans la salle SCE-239. Tout commence à 17h00, il y aura un petit buffet et deux présentations de sketch. Coût: 2$ pour membre et 3$ pour non-membre. (Amenez aussi vos propres instruments musicaux)

Sensations intimes

Le pervers

La dernière fois, je vous ai parlé de mon club. Aujourd'hui je vais vous expliquer son fonctionnement. Nos réunions étaient très importantes. Mais il était interdit de parler pendant les réunions. Attendez, attendez je vais vous expliquer pourquoi. À travers quelques sessions nous avons réalisé qu'il est plus facile de se laisser aller dans le silence. Et pour encourager cette méditation nous éteignons les lumières à chaque session.

On avait rénové une chambre de telle façon qu'au milieu de la chambre, il y avait une autre chambre. Mais cette dernière était ronde, en autres mots, il n'y avait pas de coin. Quand la lumière fut éteinte chacun se débarassa de leur matériel textile et entra par la suite dans la chambre ronde. Là on se promenait jusqu'au moment, où on découvrit quelque chose de chaud à caresser. La sensation fut forte. Je veux dire on rentre dans la chambre ronde... On ne sait pas qui est déjà là, et qui les personnes sont... On ne voit absolument rien... On a le coeur qui bat... On tend les bras d'une façon incertaine car on ne sait pas qu'est-ce qu'on va toucher.. Ou qui on va toucher... On entendait certaines respirations fortes... Des murmures.. Et des gémissements de plaisir des personnes qui se sont déjà trouvées....

Non ce n'est pas dégueulasse comme certains pourraient le croire. Car quand vous touchez quelqu'un ou quelque chose qui ne vous convient pas, vous pouvez poursuivre votre chemin. Vous avez naturellement aussi le droit de quitter la chambre lorsque vous le désirez. C'est-à-dire personne est forcé de faire quelque chose qu'il ou elle ne veut pas. Si une personne veut partir, elle trouvera, même dans la noceur de la pièce, la porte de sortie car cette dernière possède un cercle incrit qui est à tout temps éclairé d'une lumière verte et rouge.

Bien sûr qu'il est possible que l'on touche quelqu'un qui est déjà occupé. C'est d'ailleurs là qu'il faut se décider, si la personne est d'accord, de se joindre au jeu ou de poursuivre sa recherche. Certaines personnes préfèrent juste se promener et toucher, tâter et caresser les personnes en action. D'autres préfèrent se coller contre un mur s'asseoir à terre et écouter les murmures de la nature.

Qu'est-ce qui arrive lorsque tout le monde est sorti de la chambre ronde? Tout simple, on prévoit une nouvelle réunion puis on va pour un café. Et naturellement quelques personnes parleront de leurs expériences. Mais personne ne mentionnera un nom ou autre chose. Car cela est la loi du club de ne rien révéler sur notre partenaire ou nos partenaires.

Comment réagissez-vous envers la sexualité. Questionnaire:

Le pervers

Répondez aux questions suivantes si vous voulez parfaitement savoir quelle est votre réaction envers la sexualité. Faites-vous partie des personnes maniaques, des personnes qui ne s'en passent jamais, des personnes qui se cachent derrière les jupes de leur mères ou êtes-vous tout simplement un spécimen rare? A vous de le découvrir.

Pour de meilleurs résultats:
- Répondez spontanément.
- Ne trichez pas. (pourquoi pas admettre qui vous êtes!)
- Ne répondez pas pour vos amis ils sont assez grand pour le faire
- Naturellement si vous avez la trouille vous pouvez encore vous arrêter.
- Amusez-vous bien!

1. Quand vous êtes devant le miroir?
a) Vous vous peignez les cheveux et regardez si vous avez des nouveaux boutons sur la face.
b) Vous réalisez que cet habit cache bien vos quelques livres qui sont en trop.
c) Vous revenez de la douche et vous admirez votre corps en pensant à ce soir.

2. Quand vous achetez un habit il doit être.
a) Très sexy
b) Très stricte
c) De votre couleur préférée

3. Quand vous êtes dans un bar et que vous découvrez quelqu'un qui vous plaît, que faites-vous?

a) Vous envoyez un ou une ami-e pour lui dire.
b) Vous demandez pour une danse
c) Par accident vous lui versez votre boisson sur l'habit.

4. Vous recevez une vraie peau de laine de moutons. Qu'allez-vous en faire.

a) La déposer devant la cheminée pour des moments agréables
b) Vous l'envoyez dans un magasin spécial pour la faire teindre rose.
c) Vous la donnez à quelqu'un d'autre car vous n'avez pas la place pour une chose aussi horrible.

5. Vous avez invité quelqu'un pour la soirée chez vous. Vous avez tout prévu. Lorsque vous amenez votre invité-e dans le salon vous réalisez que le paquet de condoms est encore sur la table. Comment réagissez-vous?

a) Oh ben zut! Mon ou ma camarade de chambre a oublié-e ses affaires.
b) Et bien le Père-Noël a passé tôt cette année. J'ai même pas entendu.
c) Heu... je préférerais...tu sais?

6. Votre partenaire a un rêve érotique. Vous pouvez le constater aux murmurs et aux mouvements. Que faites-vous.

a) Vous embrassez et caressez son corps
b) Vous réveillez votre partenaire.
c) Vous vous tournez de bord et continuez à dormir.

7. Vous êtes en pleine action sexuelle lorsque la mère de votre partenaire entre par pure coïncidence. Comment allez-vous sauver votre honneur?

a) J'ai perdu mes verres de contacte. .. Ils devraient être par ici quelque part...
b) Une minute, on a tout de suite fini. Si vous pouviez attendre dehors?
c) Vous aimeriez nous rejoindre?

8. Vous êtes dans un bus. Il n'y a pas beaucoup de monde. Devant vous, vous apercevez une personne très attirante. Comment vous approchez-vous de la personne?

a) Vous descendez au même arrêt et suivez la personne
b) Vous vous frôlez contre la personne.
c) Vous demandez gentilement pour l'heure.

9. Quand votre partenaire est en vacances. Comment passez-vous le temps?

a) Vous attendez à côté du téléphone avec un de ses vêtements dans les bras pour sentir sa chaleur et son parfum.
b) Vous sortez à la recherche de quelque chose d'autre.
c) Vous appelez votre mère pour aller dîner.

10. Vous êtes dans une chambre d'hôtel. Tout à coup la porte s'ouvre et une personne inconnue entre dans la chambre. La personne se dirige vers votre lit, se deshabille et se couche dans votre lit.

a) Vous lui sautez dessus sans pitié. En vous disant que cette personne le veut bien puisqu'elle se trouve dans votre lit.
b) Vous allumez la lumière pour voir qui c'est.
c) Discrètement vous laissez savoir la personne que vous vous trouvez dans la chambre.

jupes de votre mère. Et non ce n'est pas maman qu'il faut appeler lorsqu'on a plus de condoms. Ayez un peu plus de courage sinon un jour vous vous retrouverez dans un cercueil et vous n'aurez jamais dégusté la vie d'à côté. Une personne qui ne joue pas à la loterie ne gagnera jamais. Et même si un jour vous risquez de ramasser une gifle cela ne veut pas dire que vous l'aurez garanti. Et d'ailleurs un peu de douleur de temps à autre nous prouve qu'on vit encore. Vous pouvez être considérés normaux. Mais ça aussi peu devenir très ennuyant. Rien de plus ridicule que de faire tous les jours l'amour de la même façon! Mais vous n'êtes pas totalement un cas désespéré. Temps à autre il y a quand même une certaine trouille en vous. Temps à autre vous avez un peu de malchance et vous perdez courage pour un petit bout de temps. Mais c'est pas grave, vous êtes sur le bon chemin, car vous récupérez facilement. Vous faites parti des personnes qui savent où se trouve la limite à vos capacités. Bon travail.

Et enlevez-moi ce sourire de votre visage, car votre mère ne serait pas fière si elle le savait. Mais puisqu'elle ne le sait pas... J'aimerais quand même que vous essayez de contrôler un peu ce petit tempérament en publique. Il faut quand même respecter la société. Volleyball Clinic

Marcel Rouleau
Staff Writer

Being a part of the crowd during a volleyball game must be a hard job. Yelling and screaming when a good play was made or when a bad called was missed. Haven't you wondered how it would be like to be on that stand and play a role in a volleyball match?

Well here is your chance, the Sudbury Volleyball Association is hosting a "local" volleyball clinic for perspective referees. The clinic will be made up of a theory class, a test and a practical. The theory part will be held on Tuesday November 30 at Sudbury Secondary School (tentative date and location), and the practical will be held on Saturday December 11, during a Senior Girls High School Volleyball Tournament.

Personally, I have been involved in this sport, as a referee, for the past 6 years. I have met many different people from different places. I have been involved in the local elementary, secondary and post-secondary volleyball matches throughout the year. I have also traveled out of town for regular season games or tournaments.

If you would like more information or would like to participate in this great developing sport, you can contact Laura Aubertin at 566-2606. It's a great way to meet new friends and have a great time with a part-time job.

Lady Vees in Michigan Tourney

On Friday night, the Lady Vees met up with the University of Oakland in their first game in Rochester. The Lady Vees opened up the tourney by losing 84-53. Stacy Hanns led our squad with 15 points in the losing cause. Saturday night the Lady Vees hammered Climax College by a score of 69-40. Guard Carolyn Swords paced the victors with 17 points while forward Joy McNichol added 13 points and 9 rebounds. Swords was named the game MVP.

Sunday's consolation final saw the Vees battle with Lake Superior State. The game ended up in an overtime win by Lake State with a score of 70-63. Swords once again led the Lady Vees in scoring with 23 and was again named game MVP. The Lady Vees next see action during the weekend of November 26 as they participate in the University of Iowa Tournament.

LU Men's Volleyball Profile

Jayne Boyle
Staff Writer

This week's player profile focuses on a student from the Ottawa Valley. Chris Needham is originally from Amprior, Ontario. He is currently enjoying his third year of Physical Education at Laurentian.

As a veteran power hitter of the team, Chris believes this year's team has a lot of talent and will surprise the other teams in the East Division. He also feels that passing is a very important element in the game, and loves to pass that perfect ball to the setter so that the middle player can "crush it". Chris' main goal for the season is to help the Vees win the East title.

Watch for more player profiles in the upcoming issues of Lambda.

Hockey Vees Split Weekend

Vees	2
Western	5

Vees	7
Windsor	2

On Saturday November 20, the Hockey Vees hosted the Western Mustangs at the Sudbury Arena. Coming into the game, the Vees were 3-5-0, while the Mustangs were a perfect 6-0-0. Though the Vees played hard, they ended up dropping the match by a score of 5-2. Centre Darren Dougan and defense Rob Lalonde scored in the losing cause.

After that drubbing, the Vees were set to exact revenge on the Windsor Lancers, and revenge is what they got. The Vees hammered the Lancers by a score of 7-2.

Coming into the game, the Lancers were last in their division which includes first place Western. Goal scorers for the Vees were Rob Papineau with a hat-trick, Darren Dougan with two more, Cory Murphy and Rob Mcaskill with one each.

The game MVP's were Rob Papineau and Cory Murphy. With the weekend split, the Vees are now 4-6-0. The Vees next game is against the RMC Redmen, the perennial cellar dwellers of the OUAA hockey league. The last time the Vees played the Redmen, they routed them 5-0. The game takes place Saturday November 27th in Kingston.

Lady Vees in Hoop Final

The Lady Vees were tournament runner-ups in last weekend's Concordia Tournament. On Friday night, the Lady Vees convincingly thrashed the St. Mary Huskies by a score of 77-47. The Lady Vees leading scorers for that night were Dianne Norman with 20 points and Tracy Hayman with 16 points.

Saturday night saw the Lady Vees squeak by McGill in a tight game. The score was 79-77. Carolyn Swords had 22 points with 5 assists and Tracy Hayman netted 22 points and 7 rebs.

The championship final featured the Lady Vees and the Toronto Varsity Blues. The first half finished with our Lady Vees holding a 7 point lead, but the Lady Vees lost in a heartbreaking final of 72-70. Again, Carolyn Swords led the Lady Vees, this time with 20 points, while Dianne Norman had 14 points. The tournament all-stars included Swords and Norman.

Vees Defeat Lake State

Vees	75
Lakers	70

On Friday, November 12, at the Ben Avery

Gym a benefit basketball event was held in the memory of Constable Joe MacDonald. All proceeds from the double header were donated to his family. In the first game, the Laurentian Vees met up with the Lake State Superior Lakers in their annual pre-season match-up. The Vees managed to knock off the visiting Lakers by a score of 75-70. The leading scorer for the Vees was forward Chris Fischer with 19 points. Guard Shawn Swords was named game MVP and netted 17 points himself.

The second game of the night featured the men's Canadian National Team against a group called Ontario Finest. The name didn't win them the victory as Team Canada took the game 101-82. Team Canada was led by Joey Vickery's 53 points. Vickery was 12 for 15 in 3 point shooting. The leading scorer for Ontario's Finest was Eli Pasquale with 21 points.

OUAA Round-up

OUAA Athlete of the Week

Mario Sturino, quarterback of the U of T Blues is the OUAA athlete of the week for November 16. He completed 15 of 30 passes for 417 yards and 2 TD's to help the Blues defeat the Concordia Stingers 26-16 to win the Churchill Bowl and advance to the Vanier Cup. Sturino is 22 years old and a 4th year political science student.

Hockey

The Universite de Quebec a Trois-Rivieres Patriotes and the Western Mustangs are the only undefeated teams left in the 16 team OUAA. UQTR's success is in part due to the outstanding goal tender Francois Gravel who currently posts a 1.94 goals against average. Ian Richardson of Ryerson continues to lead the league scoring race as he has 7 goals and 10 assists in 8 games.

CIAU Final Results

The Western Mustangs took the bronze medal at the CIAU Soccer Championships in Wolfville, Nova Scotia. The Mustangs tied both of their games in pool play and then defeated OUAA champions Queen's 2-0, for third place. Sherbrooke ended UBC's four year reign as CIAU champions with a 2-1 win in the gold medal game. Marc Labrom of Queen's, Paul Hillman of Western and Chris Markou of McMaster were selected as First Team All Canadians while Steve Albanese of Toronto and Nathan Eldridge of Western were Second Team All Canadians.

VEE LINE

Volleyball Vees

The Laurentian Volleyball Vees are currently tied in second place with York. Both teams have 4 points. The leader, Queen's is undefeated in match play with 8 points, leading the East division. Overall, Queen's and McMaster of the West division are tied for first in the league, each with 8 points.

Pizza Hut Athlete of the Week

Phil Rehberg of the LU volleyball team has been named the Laurentian University Pizza Hut Athlete of the Week. Playing at the Guelph Invitational Tournament this past weekend, Phil notched 39 kills, 10 blocks and 3 aces in only 4 games. Phil is a 4th year geography student from Georgetown.

Lady Vees Ranked #2 Nationally!!

The Lady Vees, coming out of the University of Oakland tournament in Rochester, have been ranked number two nationally. Winnipeg is ranked number 1 in the nation.

Veas Put Swords in Hann-ds

Veas 85
Gryphons 71

Darren LaBrash
Contributor

Shakespeare would have been impressed with the stifling intensity that filled the Ben Avery Gymnasium Friday night, as the LU Men's Basketball team defeated the Guelph Gryphons 85-71 in their season opener. From the opening tip-off, Gryphons were being slain left and right in a sea of blue and gold - as the Veas wasted no time putting their Swords in Hann-ds and getting down to business...score 21-8 Veas after eight minutes of play. The gap between the two battalions almost diminished near the end of the first half as Coach Campbell and his Veas switched to daggers and light-footedness in an experimentation with gravity and the law of inertia. However, the Veas finished the half with Liza filling a couple of holes in the bucket...half-time: 41-35 Veas.

Note: Seconds before the start of the second half, the head coach for the Guelph Gryphons was attacked by an unidentified bull which scampered off in an unknown direction.

The second half proved to be a great deal more exciting as both teams picked up the pace. Led by guard O'Rourke (24 points), sinking three pins far and wide, the Gryphons kept the Veas on their toes...

score: 55-49 Veas with 13:52 to go...

score: 58-49 Veas with 13:46 to go as Brad Hann answers back - shaking off the armour. And talk about shake-down. Brad Hann finished up his best game to date, scoring 24 points, dishing out 11 assists and ripping down 8 rebounds - winning the game MVP award. It seemed like every time the Gryphons mounted any sort of come back in the second half, the Veas clinched Hann-d on Swords and answered just the same. A key-three came at the 9:51 mark, when O'Rourke jousted a swish that put the Gryphons with 3, Hann came down and boom! No passing or hesitancy - shone - just boom! And from there on in the Veas made no mistake sealing the Gryphons fate. Not to be over-shadowed by the play of Hann, the whole Voyageur squad put in a real water buffalo type effort. Not to mention, the fine equestrian display that Shawn Swords(ee) put on. He finished with a consistent 22 points; 8 points and 6 rebounds. And Mike Scott, who ended the match with 9 points; 4 assists and 11 rebounds. Lest we forget the Fish or should I say Whale, who dug deep in the trenches and came out victorious amongst the big-men.

Final Score: 85-71 Veas. Thanks to all the fans that supported the Veas in their first of many victorious bouts of the season.

Guelph isn't Even a Nice Visit for Veas

The Volleyball Veas, went to Guelph last weekend for the Guelph Invitational. The old axiom, of "it's a nice to place to visit, wouldn't want to live there..." didn't apply as the Veas were bounced for most of the weekend. Their first match was against Ball State (David Letterman's alma mater) which ended up as a top 10 victory for the Yanks. They defeated LU in scores of 11-15, 7-15 and 11-15 for a 3-0 game. Phil Rehberg led the Veas with 6 kills and 3 blocks, and captured game MVP.

Second round action saw LU battle and defeat Ryerson 3-2 in a close set of matches. The individual scores were 11-15, 15-3, 9-15, 15-9 and 15-10. Phil Rehberg (11 kills and 4 blocks) and Pete Gombocz (11 kills, 2 blocks and 2 aces) were the Veas game MVP's.

Saturday saw semi-final action between LU and Queen's. Unfortunately, our boys came up short, losing to the Golden Gaels 3-0. The match scores were 11-15, 13-15, and 13-15. Chris Needham received game MVP honors for his 11 kills and 6 blocks. They then went on to lose to York 3-1, by scores of 15-11, 9-15, 7-15 and 8-15. Steve Marr was the game MVP. The Volleyball Veas next see action when they visit the U of T Blues on Friday November 26. They then met up with the York Yeomen on Saturday.

Steve Martinovich
Sports Editor

A year ago the U of T Blues faced the end of the football program due to financial considerations, this year they make the perennial Calgary Dinosaurs face extinction in the Vanier Cup at SkyDome. In a close game, the U of T Blues took out the Calgary Dinosaurs 37-34. It was the Blues first Vanier Cup since 1965. The Dinosaurs were considered the favorites by many considering the last three times they went to the Cup they ended up winning, but it was not to be this time. They played strongly, capitalizing on a Blues fumble in the first quarter which ended up as a major as Dinosaurs QB John Kalin hit his slotback for a major. The Blues did not give up as they kicked two field goals to make the game 7-6. David Richer, of the Blues, scored two TD's, one a 56 yarder, and the other a 1 yarder. Glenn McCausland set a Vanier Cup record with a 81 yard punt return. Three field goals were kicked by Stuart Brindle and Barry McCamus scored a TD because of an interception. Just like the Notre Dame-FSU game, the match was decided on the last play. Calgary attempted a field goal, but was blocked by lineman John Raposo. Just 20 000 spectators showed up for the match, with upwards of 40 000 expected.

Christmas is for Giving and Sharing Participate in the Upcoming Toy Drive

Charity Wong
HKSA, Association President

While Christmas is just around the corner, we are all getting ready for our mid-term exams, and looking forward to the holiday season. Could you spare a moment of your precious time to think about donating your used toys to needy children?

The HKSA is organizing a social responsibility event - a Christmas Toy Drive. The objective of this event is to share the joyfulness of Christmas with some children by giving them toys. We will give the toys to the children who participate in the program called "Little Beaver". Little Beaver is one of the programs organized by the N'Swakamok Native Friendship Centre, which organizes a variety of services to benefit Native people who need them. The Little Beaver program provides experiential and recreational activities for hundreds of boys and girls ages 2 to 10. We would like to ask you to donate your surplus toys that you think would be suitable for these age group of children. This is an opportunity to show that we, as university students, sincerely care about the children in our community.

The toy box will be placed in the SGA office from November 29 to December 10. In addition, a booth will be set up in the bowling alley on December 1, 12:30pm to 1:30pm. We would like to express our appreciation in person if you drop off your toys at our booth. If you would like to contribute cash in stead, we will purchase new toys for you. For cash donations, please meet us at the booth. All toys we collect will be wrapped before they are given. Please try to get involved and help us in effort.

Our executive committee is going to visit the Little Beaver children in downtown on December 18 at noon during their Christmas Party. We will give all the toys we collect to them in our visit. It will be exciting to see all these kids when the presents arrive. Any HKSA member who is interested in going with us, please contact the association president, Charity Wong at 688-9802. Special thanks to Professor David Blake for his outgoing assistance.

Please, drop in to the SGA office with your toys or meet us at the booth. Thank you all and good luck on your exams. Have a Merry Christmas.
